Q: SVG icon will not show up in Windows 8.1 RT The SVG I have works perfectly fine on iOS devices, but when I try to use it on Windows 8.1 RT it won't show up. Here is the code I use for converting it: If I directly copy the image path in the browser then it shows up perfectly. How can I get this image to show up on Windows? I would like to avoid having to convert all of the SVG icons I use. A: SVG is not an image format and does not have the same behavior as a native image. When you have an SVG img element then the img element's src attribute is only a URL with a corresponding and element inside it. Without that, the src attribute is ignored and not even a valid attribute. If the browser will find a element inside the SVG, it will use that instead of the SVG image to load. SVG test
