The Elden Ring continues its rich gameplay and production, bringing you the adventure of the Tower of Revelation in the Lands Between, a vast, unknown world that is threatened with annihilation by an unknown calamity. An exciting action RPG where players can feel the emotional impact of seeing a never-before-seen world, and its full variety of content. ABOUT ATELIER HOFNER: Founded by famous illustrator Hajime Hirasawa, Atelier has received worldwide acclaim for the quality of its products. Its games are considered to be "anime-style RPG" for its characters and stories, and the most popular of them are "The Guided Fate Paradox" for PS Vita, "The Guided Fate Paradox Burst Re:Newal" for PS Vita, and "The Guided Fate Paradox +" for PS Vita. Author: nicksturner The other day, I was working on a test for a new web service I was working on for a client. After a lot of hard work and time, I finally "got it." I put on my big boy pants, sent off the test data to the new webservice, and then promptly (apparently) destroyed my nerves because I had to call to check on the results. No biggie—I'd call back at 4:00 this afternoon and see if any issues had shown up.

Sometime after 4:00, I got a call from the customer, and I'd just started to call back, I got an email with the results of the test. The email said something like, "We found that 4/10 tests failed due to a missing dependency. You can ignore those results. Please see attached." (the email contained the test results attached to the email). I've never had this happen. Usually, I'll have a test fail before I even get to the point of sending the data. How stupid I was to think that I was finished with a test after I finished a couple features that were in development. I wasted an hour of my life looking at test results that were completely worthless. The fact is, tests are useful until they're not useful anymore. That's when you should start to implement the new features or deal with issues you found during testing. Testing should be a way to create new features and implement them as soon as they're ready. You do this

TBD Restaurant (Not Final)

I am so happy it will finally be released! So many of you have asked for this and it is going to bring in a lot of new players.

We have been on the fence about "what should we do about under or over Gashima." Recently, Arcana-san has been actively working on workarounds and so we hope to be able to not have to worry about it.

Also, there has been a lot of activity as usual. Arcana-san has been busy working on Nyakko and Cirei-san. They have been working on it for quite a
