tools in Photoshop, from the camera that shoot different formats of pictures, to custom effects and filters. There are also many other types of programs, like Fireworks, which are similar to Photoshop. Fireworks is designed for designing graphics for the Web, but it can also be used to create very nice effects from scratch, and at a fraction of the cost of Photoshop. Fireworks and Photoshop share many features. Table 1-1 gives you an overview of each program's features and how they differ. See the sidebar, "Similar programs," at the end of this chapter for more help in using other programs.

[Comparison of a monoclonal and a polyclonal antibody system for the diagnosis of pleural tuberculosis]. In order to evaluate the diagnostic value of a monoclonal antibody (MAB) in the detection of mycobacterial antigens in pleural fluid, we used the Mycobacterium phlei MACI/4B11 monoclonal antibody, which specifically reacts with mycobacterial structures. One hundred thirty three pleural fluid samples obtained from patients with known or suspected pulmonary tuberculosis and other diseases were tested by indirect immunofluorescence with the MAI4B11 antibody, and by a standard bacterial culture method. The antibody was also evaluated in cell cultures from two human pulmonary tuberculosis isolates. Twelve samples from patients with pneumonia, six samples from patients with cancer, and one sample from a patient with parapneumonic effusion, yielded positive results by both the antibody and the culture techniques. A total of 49 samples (37.4%) yielded positive results by the antibody method; 28 samples (21%) yielded positive results by the culture technique. The sensitivity of the antibody method was 83%, and its specificity, 87.8%. A total of 30 samples yielded negative results by both tests; four of these were from children and had negative culture results from culture of their pleural fluid. From these results, we concluded that the diagnostic yield was high enough to allow routine use of MAB testing in the clinical laboratory.I think this is one of those that might be pretty easy to do. I have a bunch of korn shell scripts that just use the WHOLE command to read a file and look at the contents. All it takes to do this is to get the WHOLE keyword to work. So I'd like to hear some ideas on this one since I don't know of anything like this. Here, we've picked a few, our favourites which you may want to check out. Case Study The Gosset and the Place – 2010 Sights – Red Sights (Cuvée de Place) is a beautifully crafted blend of 70% Chardonnay and 30% Pinot Noir. It's elegant with its minerally, elegant style. It's fruity with notes of pear and pear skin, with some notes of vanilla and baked in oak, which will always work well when paired with rich desserts like custard tarts, creme brulee and luscious meringues. Sights (Cuvée de Gosset) is the bespoke Chardonnay and of course, it comes from the prized estate of Gosset. Gosset, of course, refers to the French writer, Jules Verne, who in his book 'Journey to the Centre of the Earth' writes about his trip to the deepest depths of the Mariana trench in Chile, a location which today is known as the 'Treaty Trench'. Sights (Cuvée de Gosset) is a blend of estate fruit from the Burgundy region (Côte de Nuits and Côte de Beaune), and the same process and methodologies used to craft Gosset. It has a similar, but richer character to the
