Well, with this review, I take my "final" -reviews on the Lr:2,5.21.0-upgraded PS:S just posted. As you can see I had the same feelings and would give the same rating as you. Over all I stick to a rate of 4, if it was for a "New" model I would give a rate of 5. What I like: The performance is not that bad still, as long as you don´t use filters and a batch on the activel objects. When you minimize this setting and open a new some finishes sometimes took 1:30min to open, you have to be patient. To me it is not enough that Photoshop takes more time to open than a recently opened. Also "Open Documents" consume a lot of time for some weird reason, I don´t know why. But these things were to me already seen before. The Smart Previews are like ok, it is useful. But the one thing that really makes me frustrated is the complition lags. Also, I would be very happy, if you could set a Macro list. This would be the one thing that I really miss from Lightroom. But this is more of a wish than a request. Beside that, I did 100% receive the updates from my last month. Also I had the Batch Process option enabled, so that the opened files simply gets closed, so I never see the locked file yet I can still make edits. I tested this with several images, which are not in the review, so I don´t lie if "I am still very happy" with the rating or not.

Finally, I have seen Lightroom 5.5 here, so I can really compare the two widely, without being unfair to Lr: 2.5.21.0 Not been tested with 5.5, but from what I read, the performance does not look any better, so I expect the same rating as Lr: 2.5.21.0 Also, I think that you are right and might be misunderstanding the Smart Previews. But with the smart previews, Lr: 5.2.0 allows you to select also the previews that you want to use. So you have various options to select previews, depending on what you want to work on. And I use mostly the RAW Preview. Lr: 5.5 offers (in my opinion) a far better experience with the smart previews. Also, with longer batch times I should be careful with that setting. I didn´t read the note about the calibration, but the adobe website contains many articles and videos about calibrating the camera and lenses. I think it is better get a more technical calibrations done by a professional and then get some help from adobe.

From the layer palettes you can change the color and position of each shape depending on the background that you have selected.
